RE: Course FAA21000113, Aviation Maintenance Technician School (AMTS) Training

Dear Mr. Stenson,

The Aviation Technician Education Council (ATEC) formally requests that the above-referenced course be made available to industry attendees.

ATEC was founded in 1961 to further the standing of Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) certificated Title 14 Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) part 147 schools, and to promote aviation technician education. The council advocates for AMTS, provides technical and regulatory support to those entities, and promotes mutually beneficial relationships with government and industry groups.

While I understand the referenced course has not been provided since its October 2014 debut, ATEC commends the FAA for creating and implementing the training and encourages its wide-spread availability to government officials and industry. Indeed, please consider utilizing ATEC's online training platform which we are happy to make available to ensure its accessibility.

We stand ready to provide any necessary support and hope future training courses will be recognized as a path to further regulatory improvement and standardization.
